Web 2.0 Offerings

Really Simple Syndication (RSS)

PR Newswire offers visitors to PR Newswire's public website and media-only website, PR Newswire for Journalists, access to news releases in more than 688 categorized RSS feeds (188 public RSS feeds organized by industry, subject and geography, and 500 journalist feeds in English, German, Spanish and French).

Search Engine Optimization (SEO)

Releases optimized by PR Newswire's SEO service become "search engine friendly" and are indexed by the Web's leading search engines for six months. As a result, people searching the Web for related information will find the release in their natural search results for months after the release is issued. Monitoring reports, available via PRN Direct, detail the accesses releases receive from search engines. Included in the reports are keywords used to find the news release and post-click actions taken. This intelligence can be used by communicators to tailor future messages, and enables them to gain a better understanding of how their audience seeks and uses news.

Social Bookmarking – del.icio.us and digg

All news releases that are distributed over PR Newswire include links to del.icio.us and Digg, two popular social bookmarking sites.

The primary use of social tagging is to store your favorite content, which can include articles, blogs, music, restaurant reviews, or whatever is important to you, so you can access the information from anywhere. It also enables you to share it with others to create a social network. Tagging not only functions as an organizing tool, but also as a valuable marketing asset helping to move your message to those who you are specifically targeting. When someone posts related content with the same tags, a collaborative repository of related information is built, driven by shared personal interests and creative organization.

Blog Tracking Through Technorati

PR Newswire has a partnership with Technorati, the global leader in blog tracking, which enables readers of press releases to track online conversations in the blogosphere directly from press releases on www.prnewswire.com. This marks the first time Technorati has entered into a partnership with a commercial news distribution company, and will help to establish a strong link between two of the most important tools in the communications mix – press releases and blogs. All individual press releases distributed through PR Newswire include a 'Technorati' button, linking readers to a search result page hosted by Technorati that will display a list of blogs discussing and linking to the news release, and relevant excerpts from those blogs. Once on the search result page, the reader can set up an automatic watch list on Technorati to notify them when any results are posted.

PR Newswire facilitates the disclosure of material news for more than half of the public companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange, American Stock Exchange and the Nasdaq Stock Market that use a newswire to distribute their news. PR Newswire is the only newswire that can simultaneously disclose news releases in the U.S. and Canada, through Canada Newswire.

U.S. Newslines

All PR Newswire's U.S. domestic newslines are recognized as meeting the disclosure requirements of all the major stock markets. Industry Leadership PR Newswire is involved in many industry leadership activities in the Americas, Europe and Asia. In the U.S., Canada and Latin America, PR Newswire has strong relationships with professional organizations, the stock exchanges and regulatory bodies. In Europe, PR Newswire has been closely involved with the development of the Transparency Obligations Directive (TOD), a significant part of a series of measures aimed at creating a level playing field in the European financial services markets, since its earliest proposed form. PR Newswire's Mark Hynes was appointed to the CESR Consultative Working Group, comprising industry experts from different disciplines, advising the regulators on practical implementation issues of the TOD. Mark is the only media representative on the Group. The main themes in TOD deal with dissemination of inside information and notification of shareholdings aimed at ensuring that issuers, when distributing price-sensitive news and information across Europe, meet certain minimum standards.

PR Newswire also manages a free online resource, <http://www.disclosureresource.com/>, aimed at providing news, research and publications connected to the dissemination of price sensitive news by issuers around the world.

Below are some other representative organizations and affiliations of which PR Newswire is a member.

Since that time, PR Newswire's participation has been instrumental in the progress of the consortium. In January, PR Newswire launched its own XBRL-document creation tool through a partnership with Rivet Software providing investor relations professionals a way to create and distribute their financial information in XBRL. MediaSense can be deployed over any 90-day period or utilized throughout the course of a full year on an annual subscription. Reports are delivered monthly and contain an evaluation of media coverage based upon several measures. Quantitative measures include volume of coverage and coverage by media type. Qualitative measures include an evaluation of each article's tone (positive, negative, neutral), the presence of key corporate messages within articles, the overall quality of coverage based upon an article's length, placement, publication type and tone, and the equivalent ad value. All quantitative measurements are evaluated based upon a comparison to a company's key competitors, while qualitative reports offer an unbiased assessment of how a company is portrayed in the press.
